Data Security Awareness Training

Everyone is responsible for protecting the University's data, including financial records, student information, and research data. Data Security Awareness Training tells you how.

What is Data Security Awareness Training?

The training is a 15 minute video followed by a quiz, similar to the fire safety and evacuation course required of all employees.

Who needs to take the training?

All University staff, and all staff and faculty of the Biological Sciences Division.

When can I take the training?

Training times are spread throughout the year. Additional details will be emailed to you as your date gets closer.
